Hon. William A. Wallace, Chairman of the State Central Committee, called the Convention at twelve o'clock. He spoke as

Two years since you called me to the head
Two years since you called me to the head of your organization. I accepted as a duty that which I had not sought as an honor, that which I had not sought as an honor, and I bring you now no memories of battles won or of victories gained, but those of forces marshaled, of contests waged, of principles defended.

The Republic has just passed through a war of gigantic proportions. Our political foes had weilded the physical, financial and moral power of the whole. The soil of every battle-field had been reddened with the blood of members of our organization, sealing of members of our organization, sealing with their life their devotion to the Union, yet obloquy, falsehood and persecution were unsparingly hurled upon us because we had unsparingly hurled upon us because we had principles and boldly proclaimed them, and when the historian shall trace with impartial pen the events of those years, he will record that we were vilified, persecuted and defeated because we supported the principles of free government and defended the great cardinal doctrines of the Federal Constitution.

Peace came. Possessed of a vast military and naval establishment, controlling the expenditure of hundreds of millions annually, with an inquisitorial revenue system number over the control of the contr with an inquisitorial revenue system num-bering its thousands and permeating every section of the land, mith the absolute con-trol of every branch of the civil service, and the powerful aid of organized capital in the hands of men who had reaped wealth in the bloody harvest just passed, our enemy be-lieved and hoped that their grasp of power was to be perpetual, and that we were dead and buried beyond the hope of resurrection. The events of the past two years have un-decrived them, and they now recognize the created the casket we love. Governments are made for men, not men for governments, Men made the States. The States and men made the Union. Both are essential to us. The government is one of limited powers: limited that it may not trample upon our rights; limited that it may enable us to enjoy individual liberty.

To these principles we have ever been true, and so long as we have faith in them, courage in their maintenance and hope for our country, we have within us the element of success.

The past is gone, the great present is with us. As practical men we may mould its relatives to shape the events of the future, and aid in regaining the highway to national prosperity.

In advancing the material progress of our great Commonwealth, in developing her immense resources, in fostering her industrial therests and in placing her in the vanguard of the family of States, we shall find a career worthy of the most exalted ambition.

In resuming my place in the ranks of your army, I may be permitted to return to you my sincere thanks for the uniform courtesy and kindness with which you have treated

RESOLUTIONS. Hon. B. M. Boyer, of Montgomery County, from the Committee on Resolutions

reported the following platform :
We the delegates of the Democratic per we the delegates of the Democratic party of Pennsylvania in general State Convention assembled, for the nomination of a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court, profoundly grateful to the Supreme Ruler of the Universe for the return of peace to our beloved country, but deeply anxious on account of the trials and delays which impede the complete restoration and rempion pede the complete restoration and reunion of all the States, and appreciating the dangers which still threaten the safety of our political institutions, and the future peace, liberty and prosperity of the people, Resolved. That we steadfastly adhere to the principles of civil government establish-the principles of civil government established by the founders of the Union, and in the present canflict of legislative usurpation with constitutional law, we esteem a wise, uplight, and fearless judiciary the great bulwark of public liberty and individual right. Each State having, under the Constituqualifications of its own electors, we proestablishment of negro suffrage in any of the States by the coercive exercise of Fed-eral power, and we shall resist to the last resort the threatened measures of the last ers of the Republican party to interfere by acts of Congress with the regulation of the elective franchise in the State of D

We are opposed to any amendment of the Constitution of the State giving to negroes the right of suffrage.

That the failure of the tariff bill in the last session of the late Congress, more than three fourths of whose members belonged three fourths of whose members belonged to the Republican party, is an illustration of their infidelity to their pledges and their ne-glect of their profession in relation to the great industrial and financial interests of the

That the radical majority in Congress, and those who sustain them, have overthrown the Constitution, dismembered the Federal Union, and subverted our republican form Union, and subverted our republican form of government by a long series of usurpations, among which are the following: The denial of the right of the States of the Union to representation in Congress; the treatment of ten States as subjugated provinces, and governing them by military force in lieu of peace; the enactment of laws denying indemnity for arrest and false imprisonment made without authority of law; the resistance of the authority of civil trithe resistance of the authority of civil tri-bunals, and their overthrow by the substitution of military commissions for the trial of undefined offences; their efforts to destroy the Executive and Judicial departments of the government by threatened impeachment, the government by threatened impeachment, to control executive action, and a projected remodeling of the Supreme Court of the United States, to force obedience to the venal mandates of Congress; the ejectment from their seats in the Federal Senate and House of Representatives of members duly and legally chosen: the purpose of confiscation, avowed by the Republican leaders, in violation of the declaration of rights and other guarantees of Federal and State constitutions, tending, as it does, to destroy all stitutions, tending, as it does, to destroy all

That a strict conformity, both by Federal and State government, to all powers, restrictions, and guarantees, as contained in the constitution of the United States; a rigid and wisy economy in the administration of public affairs, and the election of capable, honest and patriotic men to office, are measures absolutely necessary to restore public confidence, avert national bankruptcy, and to insure the perpetuity of our free inand to insure the perpetuity of our free in

[From the Riverside Echo.] FIRESIDE STORIES.

BY J. EDGAR LAKE.

A few months ago, on a cold raw day in January, I entered the private office of the firm of which I am a member, and found my partners in earnest consultation over the contents of a letter received by the morning mail. The letter contained the unwelcome intelligence that one of our agents, in a manufacturing town in New Hampshire, had proved recreant to his trust, and absconded with a considerable sum of money belonging to the firm. It was immediately decided that one of us must visit the scene to regulate matters, and take immediate steps for the apprehension of the thief. Having at one time in my life been a member of the secret police, and gained a good reputation in that capacity, my partners flatteringly remarked that I was just the person to "work up" the case.

The next morning I started for L the scene of the robbery. In one week's time the thief had been captured, nearly all the stolen money recovered, and in the best of spirits I made preparations to start for home the following morning. When morning came the sky looked threatning, and the weather prophets predicted an unusually severe snow-storm. But having a good horse and warm robes I determined to start. About ten o'clock it commenced snowing and blowing in earnest; at four the roads were impassible, and I was forced to seek shelter at a wayside inn. Upon entering being a duty as well as a right pertaining to the people of every State, and essential to our republican system of government. Its denial is the destruction of the government tion, the exclusive right to prescribe the ful supper. When we were again scated round the fire one of our number proposed that each in turn should relate some personal adventure. The proposition meeting with favor, the eldest of our little group was requested to commence. He was a noble looking man of some fifty years, and his story I give as nearly as possible.

"The incident which I am about to relate occurred many years ago, but 'tis as fresh in my memoay as though it was but yesterday. And to convince you of the truth of my story, look at my arm," and bareing the member he showed us several deep, ugly sears. "I was a youth of twenty when these were made, and I'll tell you how it happened. My father was formerly a merchant in B---, when I was about ten years old he became unfortunate in business, and lost nearly all his property; he had speculated in laud considerably, and at the time of his reverses owned a tract of land in this State. Tired of the world, he removed his family to the then almost unbroken forest. Game, large and small. was plenty, and having a natural inclination I soon became au expert hunter for a boy. I would take my rifle, and, accompanied by my deg Brave a noble fellow, make long excursions through the surrounding country. Some ten miles from our cabin there was a small settlement, and thither I went occasionally. One afternoon it was in October. I took my rifle, and whistling for Brave, started for the settlement. The bears were unusually plenty that fall, and that afternoon my mother warned me to get home before night. On reaching the settlement I found a number of persons congregated round the 'store,' and becoming interested in the conversation, time passed away faster than I was aware of. It was nearly sunset when I started for home, and it bid fair for a dark night, though there was a moon. I had gone about four miles, when the dog, who was a few steps in advance, suddenly stopped and gave vent to low, deep growl, I stepped quickly forward, and saw directly in front of me an enormous he bear and two cubs. I knew she would be a dangerous customer, and drew back with the intention of leaving her unmolested. But she chase. I confess my limbs trembled, for a his private opinion. "You are a set of moment, and then every nerve seemed of iron. Hastily ordering the dog behind me, and loosening my knife-and bowse-in my belt, I cocked my rifle and waited for her bearship to come nearer. Finding I did not run, the bear halted when within about fifteen yards of me, and raised herself upon her hind legs. This gave me an excellent

That the Democracy of Pennsylvania by their representatives now assembled, hereby tender acknowledgment and thanks to George W. Woodward in his retirement from the position of Chief Justice of this Commonwealth, for the pure and faithful manner in which he discharged the duties of that exhalted position.

That the candidate we this day present to the people of Pennsylvania for a place on the Supreme Bench of the State, is, in all respects, worthy of the confidence and support of all who are in favor of an enlightened, faithful and impartial administration of the laws. darkness was falling fast, and leaving my "After going perhaps a mile and a half, Brave, who led the way, came to a halt, and then with another growl retreated to my side. Putting my hand upon him, I could feel him tremble, and I trembled also, for I knew there was but one animal he feared, and that the panther. Naturally I human habitation, surrounded by darkness, and know a panther is watching you, is sufficient to test ones nerves and courage. I knew it was no use to retreat so speaking encourageingly to Brave, I took my knife in my teeth, and cocking my trus-ty rifle, I cautiously advansed. I had ta-ken but a few steps, when from a tree a few yards in advance I saw the creature's glaring eyes fixed upon me. At that moment the moon passed from under a cloud, and I could see the panther crouch to spring .-Quickly raising my rifle, and taking the best aim I could, I exclaimed, 'Take him Brave,' and fired. Scarcely had the report of my rifle rang through the forest when I was hauled to the ground and felt the creature's teeth in my arm. Before I could use my knife, Brave fastened his tooth in its throat, I sprang to my feet to assist the dog, but no help was needed, the panther was badly wounded by my shot, and the dog finished him. Poor Brave, he was sadly torn by the creatures claws, my own wounds were severe. Loading my rifle as best I could, I started on again. I reached home but to open the door and fall fainting into the room. It was weeks before I went out again, but Brave and I took many a tramp afterwards, and saw some hard service. Poor Brave ! when he died I buried him with all the honors of war, and dropped upon his grave a tearful tribute to the noble brute, who more than once saved my life.

Such, gentlemen, is my story."

Bill Simpson's Legal Experlence.

Many years ago the Legislature of Tennessee passed an act to organize the county of McNairy, alias Snake. At that time the country embraced in the limits of Snake was occupied by a set of back-woodsmen, totally unacquainted with courts, jails, &c. The county assembled at the appointed site for the purpose of cutting logs, making boards, &c., to build a court house and jail. The only theme of daily conversation, when the men were assembled, was the court &c. None of them had ever seen a court in session, as yet developed. Each one would give what his idea was of court, &c. None however, were entirely satisfactory, until Bill Simpson was called on to give his ideas. He said he knew all about a court, that he had had a law-suit in North Carolina. One of his neighbor's hogs kept coming when he fed his hogs, until it got fat. One mornmine host called us to partake of a bountithought it would not do to throw it away so he cleaned and salted it. Shortly after his neighbor and a man come to his house, examined the smokehouse, and took him to town and put him in a little office. About thee months after that his man came and took him to a large room. A large man sat upon a high bench-a man was sitting at a desk-about a dozen fine dressed men sat in a place that was paled around. The man put him in a pen that was just behind them. He then called in twelve men, they took their seats in a box in front of the fine dressed men. The man that was writing gave the twelve men a book, and said something about Bill Simpson and the State. Then one of them fine men read something about Bill Simpson and the hog, and he and another of the fine dressed men had the biggest quarrel you ever heard. I thought they didt't. It was Bill Simpson and the hog, and the hog and Bill Simpson, and sometimes Mr. Simpson, but very seldom, After they quit quarrelling, the big man talked awhile to the twelve men, and they went out and staved a short time, and came back and said something to the men at the deek. Then the man at the bench said something to the man that put me in the office, and he took me out and tied me to s tree, and commenced cowhiding me with s cowhide, and it made me so mad that I

The appropriateness of the name given to the Republican party, by its distinguished eader, Hon. Horace Greeley, ought not to be disregarded by the Democrats However much we have differed from Mr. Greeley upon politics, his astuteness in reading the peculiar characteristics of individuals and parties, we have never questioned. Doubless, his estimate of the Republicans, as a party, has been long entertained. Their fanatical absurdities and monstrous crimes, could not have failed to wite his indignation frequently during the past few years; but his partizan proclivities have stifled the expression of his true sentiments. It only needed an occasion, when his spirit should be chafed by applications of the proscriptive lask to his own had seen me and with an angry growl gave shoulders, to induce a public declaration of blockheads!" says H. G. We agree with Mr. Greeley, fully; and inasmuch as the great leader of the party-not us-has christined it, we adopt the name. The Republican party no longer exists. Henceforth, our political battles are to be waged with
